

Price adjustment for products of Melos GmbH

Melle, 30. November 2021. Melos GmbH from Melle announces a price adjustment for EPDM granules from December 1st, 2021. The price adjustment is necessary due to steadily rising raw material and energy costs as well as higher expenses for transport.

The COVID 19 pandemic continues to influence the situation on the raw material markets, supply chains and energy exchanges. This has resulted in enormous price pressure and reduced availability of raw materials. In addition, supply chains are disrupted and exploding freight costs and energy prices are driving up production costs. Unfortunately, there is no relief in sight at the moment, but a further worsening of the general situation.

Melos GmbH from Melle therefore sees itself forced to adjust the prices for EPDM granules as of December 1st, 2021.

About Melos GmbH:

Melos develops and produces coloured rubber granules and system components, e. g. for artificial grass pitches, stadium running tracks, multi-functional sports fields and playing areas. It also produces individual tailored industrial compounds that are primarily used in the cable industry, the automotive sector, and many more. The team of over 250 staff supports installation companies all over the world with their technical knowledge, products, and services from the Melle site in Lower Saxony – and has been doing so since more than 80 years.
